Rabbinic Reflection

As those who are regular Friday night Shabbat attendees well know, I do not often speak of politics from the bima, nor do I usually discuss politics in the Bulletin. There are times, however, where this becomes a necessity. We are now living in those times. This past week, the newly inaugurated

President, on International Holocaust Remembrance Day no less, issued an order that shut the US borders to all refugees for 120 days, and banned entry for all nationals of seven specific Muslim majority nations for at least 90 days, pending further policy review. He also indicated in interviews that refugees of one religion would be prioritized over refugees of other religions. This order is not only unconstitutional, but flies in the face of Jewish values, and indeed, human decency. I call upon President Trump to rescind the order immediately. I am joined in this call by every single American rabbinical seminary, every single national denominational organization, and every single national rabbinical organization, without exception (that includes Reform, Conservative, Orthodox, Reconstructionist, Trans-Denominational and Renewal). We are joined by a nearly unanimous chorus of Jewish organizations and leaders. Our Jewish tradition teaches that we are to take care of the stranger. The Torah commands this of us 36 times--repeating the lesson more than an other commandment in Torah. In Leviticus 19:34 we read, "The strangers who reside with you shall be to you as your citizens; you shall love each one as yourself, for you were strangers in the land of Egypt." Exodus 22:21 states, "And you shall not wrong a stranger, neither shall you oppress them; for you were strangers in the land of Egypt." We have an obligation as Jews and as human beings to uphold this principle. The last time the US had such restrictions on refugees, the Jews aboard the World War II era ship SS St. Louis returned to war-torn Europe, where at least a quarter of the over 900 denizens died in the Nazi concentration camps. Our cry of "never again" is not just a Jewish cry. It must be the cry of a humanity that will not accept the racism and xenophobia that inform this misguided policy directive. A policy that denigrates the humanity of others will not make the world a safer place. It just makes the world an angrier place, and anger does not give rise to safety. We are better than this!

Kol tuv,

Rabbi Jay Sherwood

Presidential Perspectives

One of the primary responsibilities of congregational leadership is effective communication with members of the congregation. This involves primary communication and clarification of misinformation should it become necessary. This month

I discuss the process by which we deal with rabbinical contracts.

Rabbi Sherwood's contract ends June 30, 2017 what are the steps necessary to renew this contract. As basic as it seems, the first step is a question. I recently sat with Rabbi Sherwood and asked him if he wanted to pursue another contract with Congregation Emanu El (CEE) to which he responded, "Yes." That response set in motion the following events. The Executive Committee in its designated role as the temple's personnel committee, as set forth in the CEE bylaws, was convened (01/12/17) to determine if another contract should be offered to Rabbi Sherwood. The majority vote of the personnel committee was in the affirmative, to extend a new contract at the conclusion of the current contract. At the general board meeting held January 19, 2017, the entire board was made aware of and asked to endorse the decision of the personnel committee. The Board of Directors unanimously endorsed the proposal. The next action in the process is the creation of a new contract by the personnel committee. This will be submitted to Rabbi Sherwood for his review and through an iterative process during which both parties consider each other's proposals, a final contract document will be produced. This document is then presented to the entire Board of Directors of CEE, as prescribed by the temple bylaws, for its approval. The power to accept or deny the contract is vested in and will be determined by the entire CEE Board of Directors. The contract process, as I have described above, will be carried out with the utmost transparency and I encourage all congregants to contact me or members of the Executive committee with questions pertaining thereto. Your input is encouraged and always appreciated!

Please be aware of these upcoming events at the temple. On February 12th our 2017 Cantor's Concert will take place at 4:00 PM. The theme is "My Favorite Things" and Cantor Bern-Vogel and friends will entertain us with an afternoon of religious and secular music. Call the temple office for tickets. I look forward to seeing you there.

Craig Beasley*

Sisterhood Speaks

On behalf of Sisterhood I am so glad to welcome back both Rabbi Sherwood and Judy Filsinger from their January travels! Thank you both for all you do for our congregation. I am also pleased to announce our very first Sisterhood "Shero" Award went to Karyn Lehmann and her family for all their efforts in making our Chanukah dinner a delicious success!! Much gratitude goes to both Shelley Bodnar and Jill Weissman for heading our Casino Night committee. Both ladies and their committee were phenomenal and created a magnificent event for all!! It's no surprise that they are the recipients of the next Sisterhood "Shero" awards- congratulations!!

February brings our annual Mah Jongg Tournament on February 20th. Please make sure to RSVP if you have not already. If you are able to donate prizes/baskets please make sure to contact either Paula Kaye or Carole Wizer- they are also in need of salads and help with set up and clean up! On February 24 we will be having our very special Sisterhood Shabbat and all are invited to attend and bring a dessert to share for the oneg following the service. Also, on February 26 please join us along with the wonderful Nancy Sidhu for a lovely, organized walk. We will be leaving the Temple by 10:00 a.m.

Upcoming in March we will also once again be having the somewhat not necessarily annual Talent Show on March 4. Please contact Michele Zipperstein if you are interested in participating.

And of course, last but not least, we are in full preparation for Shalach Manot and are arranging hamentaschen baking as well as stuffing bags. Please contact Leslie Soltz if your are able to help and look for dates in the bulletin and in the Emanu El-ectonic News!

Our next Sisterhood meetings will be February 5 and then March 5 both at 10:00 a.m. at the Temple.

In Sisterhood,
Francesca Sweet

Treasurer's Report

My dear Fellow Congregants,

We are headlong into the final half of our fiscal year. Our collections for dues and other obligations are behind that of the last fiscal year at this same time (the first 7 months). Please make every effort to bring your obligations current as this will enable us to meet our requirements as presented in the budget for 2016-2017. We are beginning our process for setting the budget for the next year.

We hope to be able to plan to increase our programs that will attract more participation and new members. Please speak to those who are potential members and advise our membership committee, Margie Orland and Paula Kaye, who are diligently meeting with people to try and grow our congregation. You are our best ambassadors and we need to grow to continue to serve the Jewish Community we have been a part of for so long.

In these uncertain times, we need to be a strong voice for the Jewish values we cherish.

Warmest regards,

Marvin Reiter

Mental Health Awareness

February 2017

At the temple last September, about 30 Emanu El congregants, relatives, and friends attended a 2 day course on Mental Health First Aid, taught and paid for by the County of San Bernardino Department of Behavioral Health.

Around that time, in this column, we mentioned a koala named ALGEE. ALGEE came from Australia because that's where the concept of Mental Health First Aid was developed and implemented throughout the society. Some Americans liked the idea and made it America-friendly, and now it's finding its way throughout our society.

We'd like to get you acquainted with ALGEE. ALGEE guides us in taking care of someone with a mental health crisis. Let's take him step by step:

- A – Assess for risk of suicide or harm
- L – Listen nonjudgmentally
- G – Give reassurance and information
- E – Encourage appropriate professional help
- E – Encourage self-help and other support strategies

Without being professional ourselves, we can approach a difficult situation in a careful way – asking simple, direct questions, for example, to assess risk. 'How have you been feeling?' 'What have you been thinking about?' And if signs indicate suicide or other self-harm, ask clearly – 'Have you been thinking about harming yourself?'

One thing ALGEE requests of us is that we stay calm and strong, gentle and accepting. Anyone in a crisis needs someone to lean on and trust. We can be that person. We can listen with an open heart.

You likely know someone, a family member or friend, who lives with mental illness. It's not too hard to find some resources so that if an occasion arises, you could provide a telephone number or even a place to go for urgent help. For example, there are Community Crisis Response Teams in San Bernardino County that provide assistance in the field and follow-up services. There are also walk-in clinics in our valley, on the High Desert, and in the Morongo Basin. And there's the 2-1-1 phone number for a whole host of referrals for food, housing, employment, health care and counseling. You can even check it out at www.211.org.

In coming months, we'll get to know ALGEE even better. It's good to know we can be prepared.

Sisterhood Walk

Congregation Emanu El Sisterhood invites you to A Walk in Live Oak Canyon

Sunday, Rosh Chodesh, February 26, 2017, 10 am

As the first stirrings of Southern California's spring appear, join Nancy Sidhu and Susan Damron for a walk on the trails of the Redlands Conservancy-managed Live Oak Canyon. We'll meet at the temple by 10 am and car pool to Oakmont Park, our starting off spot. We can take the challenge and go up the ridge, or enjoy the level path to the left. Either way, we'll be accompanied by birds and breezes.

Please bring with you not only comfortable shoes, a hat and water, but also at least one memory of a time – a moment, an afternoon, a vacation – when you connected with nature – an animal, a tree, the ocean – so we can share our stories and open ourselves to, perhaps, another encounter.

Contact Nancy Sidhu (dnsidhu@msn.com) for more information, or just show up for a delightful walk.

The sky and the grasses invite you outdoors as we enter the joyous month of Adar.
