Rabbinic Reflections

I know it's only the first of September, yet for your rabbi and cantor the High Holidays have been occurring for a few weeks already. This year we are busily planning and creating many innovative ways of worshipping and exploring our spiritual preparation for these special days. Make sure to check our social media and website daily during the month of Elul, as we are posting inspirational texts and tools every day until Rosh Hashanah. Our High Holy Days booklet filled with all the details is coming to you soon.

Take note of some very special holiday programs happening this year. We are joining 10 other congregations for S'lichot, the first service in the High Holy Day season. You can listen to some talented cantors and learn from two panels of insightful rabbis as we welcome this special season. This year S'lichot falls on September 12th. We also are hosting a taste of the holidays contactless drive through experience on September 17th, complete with a special gift for you and yours. Join us as we enter the holidays this year, with joy and hope for a year filled with blessings.

While fall is upon us, schools have begun, most digitally, we continue to navigate what it means to return to life, with our pandemic restrictions, and a little more exhausted than normal. I urge each and every one of you to be extra kind to yourself this season, as we all are experiencing prolonged stress from these challenging times. But know that your clergy are committed to bringing you an uplifting high holiday experiences, that we all deeply need.

Wishing you and yours an early Shanah Tovah U'Metukah, A sweet and good new year!

Presidential Perspectives

For every thing,
there is a season

We're all friends here. So let's admit something to each other. When you read those words, you didn't think, "Oh that's Ecclesiastes 3:1-8." You thought of that song by The Byrds. You're probably hearing it in your head as I type. If not, and if you're reading this online, click anywhere on this article to listen now.

Whether you're thinking of the prophet or the rock star, the message is the same. Balance is important. I tend to write a lot about tolerance and about loving one another, especially now as we are all going through this immensely difficult time. But despite that, there is a time and a place for nearly everything. And sometimes, there is a time and a place for intolerance.

As we come into the Hebrew year 5781, is this the time for peace? Or is it time for, as the late John Lewis called it, "good trouble?" Perhaps it is both. And, perhaps each one of us has it within ourselves to realize when to forgive and when to be steadfast in our disapproval. For by holding fast to our values and giving no quarter to those who would destroy them, we build a better world where peace can finally reign.

As a child I was bullied. I was hardly the only one. I was not athletic, I did not pay much attention to the fads most kids enjoy, and I had – believe it or not – a large unruly mop of hair that stuck up in different directions. Bullying was very common in our childhoods. Our adult leaders did it just as much as our peers. I hope that if you were bullied, that you have found a way to put that behind you, and forgive those people who did not know what they were saying.

And I hope as well that you learned that you need not be tolerant of bullying. Bullying does not need to spawn more bullying, but it cannot go unchallenged either. Unchallenged bullies grow up to become ignorant, uncontrolled adults. Such adults may go surprisingly far in life. They may become prominent professionals or even hold nationwide office. But in the end they are still bullies, who destabilize any attempt at collaboration and peace.

As I age, I learn there is a time to walk away from bullies, and a time to challenge them. There is a time to let people be who they are, and a time to stop their toxicity in their tracks. Maybe you still know some bullies. I encourage you, be kinder to them than they were to you. But don't be afraid to stand up for yourself and your beliefs. No one needs to be bullied. It does not make you a better person to have been bullied. Bullying is a gateway to other toxic behaviors and you have a right to exclude it from your life.

I wish you all a happy and safe new year, full of promise and hope and mercifully free from the bullies around us. Shalom,

Stuart Sweet

Hineni he'ani mi-ma'as.... 🎵

Here I am,
one soul within this prayer community.
Like those around me, I bring my own concerns and yearnings to this place,
hoping they will find expression in the time-hallowed words of my people and in the traditions cherished by generations before me.

May I bring the best of my energies to these High Holy Days, approaching this spiritual work with open heart and mind, sincerity, and sustained focus on the deep questions of this season:

Who am I? How shall I live? Where have I fallen short – or failed?

This night I take up the challenge of the Days of Awe:

Cheshbon HaNefesh – a searching examination of my life,
a moral inventory of my deeds, words, and thoughts....

May I gain strength as I share this task with those around me,
united by our common purpose:

Tikkun Middot [improving our characters] and Tikkun Olam
[repairing the world.]

[Mishkan HaNefesh, p.16 – Rosh Hashanah]

Hineni. Here I am. This is the traditional prayer chanted by the Cantor from the back of the sanctuary at Rosh Hashanah. In the past two years at Congregation Emanu El, both Rabbi and Cantor have entered together – alternatively singing and reciting the prayer leader's confession in the face of daunting responsibility. This year, we have a very different kind of responsibility - one none of us could ever have imagined. We have the responsibility of coming together to celebrate, sing, pray, reflect, mourn, atone and find renewal within ourselves and with the strength of one another, to carry on into the next year – to choose life – all from our own homes. It is a greater challenge than ever, but your Rabbi, Cantor, Temple President, Choir Director, Administrative Staff, volunteer choir members, office volunteers and lay leaders have been working very hard - with much appreciated input from you, our members - to create a High Holy Day season unlike any other. In this way, we consecrate and praise LIFE in order to protect one another as best as we can from the viral infection that has already robbed millions around the world and our own communities, of their precious lives. In our HHD zoom services, not only will you hear the Torah chanted by our congregants, but also by friends from Sacramento, Kansas City and Tokyo, Japan! And...we have many more special surprises for you, thanks to the magic of technology and opportunities we would normally not even consider. We look forward to 'seeing' you in our various zoom room services and pray that we all continue to stay well and b'ezrat HaShem – with God's help and blessing, we will be back in our beautiful sanctuary B'shanah hab'ah in the New Year to come!

May you and your loved ones stay safe and healthy and may we all be strong - Chazak, chazak v'nitchazek – be strong and strengthen one another!

Shanah Tovah u'metukah! A Happy and Sweet New Year,
Cantor Jennifer Bern-Vogel & family

Treasurer's Report

Dear CEE Congregants,

Shalom and Happy New Year!

Happy New Year! May the new year bring you joy, good health, and happy memories!

I will miss seeing you all at Temple Emanu El! I believe that by holding our services virtually we are reducing the risk of spreading Covid-19. We are also taking away your choice of meeting via Zoom or in person and therefore reducing guilt for all of you in having to choose to watch virtually or show up in person! We have made the choice for you! We will all watch virtually!

Thank you to our wonderful clergy, office staff, and volunteers for making the High Holiday preparations look effortless! You have all done a wonderful job of bringing the Congregation events into our homes with joy and spiritual meaning. I appreciate each and every one of you!

I will publish the annual 2019/2020 income and expense statement in the Temple Topics in the October issue. Until then, please remember to pay your dues both for the current year and for any pledges or contributions you promised from prior years.

If you have any questions or concerns about our budget or our current finances, please call or text me at 704-756-7427 or send me an e-mail address at kathy.rosenfeld@gmail.com.

La Shana Tova!

Sisterhood Speaks

5781

The High Holy Days are almost here. I was hoping that we would have cast the COVID-19 shroud off by now and worship as we always do, but 2020 in keeping with her patterns, has changed our plans once again.

Luckily, we are a learning people! We adapt as we must and use the resources available to us to make the best of a less than ideal situation.

This year WILL be different than others.

Please have faith that our leadership is working tirelessly to bring you the love, prayer and ceremonies that we all so desperately need.

Hopefully, it will not be our "normal".

Hopefully, we will not need to keep adjusting our routines.

Hopefully.

This year the holidays will hold deeper meaning for most of us as we adjust our habits and daily life, reflected in our Temple life.

Hopefully.

We can take this time of reflection to make the best of what is being offered, and what we have to offer.

Hopefully.

We can embrace the new year with an outlook that will benefit our community, our Country and the earth as a whole!

Join us in celebrating the good, mourning the losses and moving forward, casting off our sins and embracing new challenges!

May the new year fill you with hope!

Keep your eyes open for your membership packet and please return it as soon as possible, our membership VP Paula Kaye and Barb Smith have worked diligently to see that our membership is tended to.

Honey greeting requests should also be returned asap as well! Our Ways and Means VPs Jill Weissman and Stacy Knox have worked hard as well to make sure that we are all able to welcome the new year with a bit of sweetness!

Mental Health Awareness in Action

Do you tend a garden? Planting, watering, weeding? Do you take your dog for a walk and feed him/her, make a bed for her/him? Do you make an effort to say some small thing to the clerk in the supermarket, or the person next to you in some interminable line? Do you work with others on projects? Do you have heart-to-heart talks with friends you trust? And do you have partners, children and houseplants you help to thrive?

If so, you are “tending and befriending.” And it may seem ordinary, unremarkable, but it is an essential way of recovering mental and emotional strength and resiliency. According to Nick Arnett when we get socially stressed, when we feel especially exposed and vulnerable, we begin to defend ourselves and distance ourselves from social situations. That’s when we most need to do a little tending and befriending.

Nick Arnett gave a Zoom workshop for Redlands and other CERT (Community Emergency Response Team) members this summer. He is a firefighter/EMT and fire chaplain specializing in crisis intervention and support. His message was that stress is good for us, but only if we take it in limited doses, and take active steps to recover from each stress period. And stress + recovery = strength. He talked about physical, mental/emotional, and spiritual strength and resilience.

For social stress, tending and befriending quite naturally produces our body’s hormones that relax us. Our ‘monkey-mind’ that leaps into action when we are in an emergency (or perceive ourselves to be in one) is calmed down. Our tunnel vision, our reactive defensiveness, our panic at losing control – all these ease their hold on us as we tend and befriend. Then we can recover and grow stronger in our thinking and feeling.

And there are “resiliency routines” we can follow, starting small, and then when we neglect them, starting over. As he repeats: Start small. Start over. Be gentle with yourself.

And now we stand at the head of our new year, Rosh Hashanah, a perfect time to create resilience routines for tending and befriending, for starting over, for starting small.

Nick has a delightful little book out called Resilience During the Pandemic. Highly recommended. (<https://nickarnett.nett>.)

Stress + Recovery = Strength

Heidi Nimmo and Nancy Sidhu, Co-Chairs, Mental Health Awareness In Action (MHAIA)

From Our Director of Education & Youth

Every year, around this time, I can feel that the end of the summer is getting closer and that renewal is in the air. Rosh Hashanna is around the corner, a new Jewish year will soon begin, bringing new promises and expectations.

There is an Israeli expression “Acharei Hachagim”

- אחרי החגים meaning “After the Holidays”, since September is usually a busy month with the high holidays (Rosh Hashanna, Yom Kippur and Sukkot) Everything that is not related to them, is postponed until after the holidays. This term is also used in modern Hebrew slang and means “To postpone something”

“Achrei Hachagim” is also an expression of hope for something new and better.

What I hope for “Acharei Hachagim” (after the holidays) is to maintain the family time and our new little traditions that we created during these challenging times of social distancing. To keep enjoying the slow down we were forced to do in the last 6 months, and that eventually we learned to appreciate. I am waiting to rejoin with family, friends and our community members and hoping that the world will renew itself and start healing after this long and tiring time of the pandemic.

I am excited to start a new SJL school year because it is a sign that life continues after all, and we can make the best of it. We will also begin a new program for toddlers, social justice group experience and confirmation class for our teens.

In my Israeli way I wish all of us that after the holidays everything will be better.

May we all have a good and sweet new Jewish year.

Shanah Tova,

Marcela Lavi
