PURIM, HEALING SERVICE & RABBI MARY ZAMORE,
author of "The Sacred Table"

We all love Hamentashen, know a little something about the Book of Esther and enjoy receiving and giving Shalach Manot. Here are some Purim facts you might not know, by Biblical scholar and Hebraist, Professor Adele Berlin, who has published commentaries on the Book of Esther among others...

The Book of Esther serves as the authorizing document for Purim, a holiday that is not mentioned in the Torah. But the Megillah's mandate differs from the Torah's in one crucial respect: it is careful not to say that God commanded the observance of Purim. In fact, God is nowhere mentioned in the book and this absence emphasizes the distinction between the Torah and its festivals on the one hand and the Megillah and its festival on the other. The Megillah makes no suggestion that Purim is an ancient festival that had been forgotten or neglected. Purim is clearly a new festival, of recent origin.

Esther is the most "secular" of the biblical books, making no reference to God's name, to the Temple, to prayer, or to distinctive Jewish practices such as kashrut [keeping kosher]. Yet Esther, of all the biblical books outside of the Torah, is the only one that addresses the origin of a new festival. For this reason, if for no other, Esther should be considered a "religious" book. Its main concern, the very reason for its existence, is to establish Purim as a Jewish holiday for all generations.

Another successful rhetorical strategy is the combination of a serious theme and a comic style. The threat of the destruction of the Jews is no laughing matter, but the Book of Esther is hilariously funny. The raucous Persian court, with its lavish display of luxury and its pervasive drinking parties, is not the setting we expect for the impending annihilation of the Jewish people. The plot glories in revelry and bawdiness (and this may be the primary reason for the absence of God's name)

The festival of Purim brings us a uniquely irreverent and joyously optimistic celebration of Jewish identity and Jewish continuity.

SUN., MARCH 5: Join us for a festive Purim celebration on Sunday morning – for all ages! with a Megilla Reading, delicious HAMENTASHEN and a FIDDLER ON THE ROOF Purimshpiel! Costumes encouraged!!

SAT., MARCH 18: It has been awhile since we've been able to come together for a healing service – COVID, illness, grief, mourning, woes of the world – whatever stage you may be in, we hope you will join us for a Shabbat morning healing service of meditative music and special readings. Potluck Kiddush to follow.

TUES., MARCH 21: RABBI MARY ZAMORE, Executive Director of the WRN [Women's Rabbinic Network] will be leading a teaching session on March 21 @ 6:30 p.m. on zoom – just in time for Passover from her book: The Sacred Table, Creating a Jewish Food Ethic.

Presidential Perspectives

I think that March is my favorite month of the year. Michele's birthday and our anniversary fall in March (on the same day!). It is also the start of baseball season with the opening of spring training. As John Fogerty once said, "Put me in coach, I'm ready to play, today".

About 15 years ago, when the Temple was on E Street, our Rabbi asked me to be one of the speakers on Yom Kippur. The topic was, My Most Important Jewish Moment. I chose a moment in 1965 when Sanford Braun (Sandy Koufax) would not pitch in a World Series game that year because the game fell on Yom Kippur. After my speech, that Rabbi told a joke that still makes me laugh to this day. He said, "Don Drysdale filled in for Sandy that day and was blitzed by the opponent in the first inning. As the Dodger Manager, Walt Alston, came to the mound to remove Drysdale from the game, Drysdale said, as he handed Alston the ball, 'bet you wished I was Jewish too'". Great line!

I later learned that Koufax wasn't the first to not play on Yom Kippur. Hank Greenberg, the Hall of Fame slugger from the 1930-1940's Detroit Tigers, did it as well. Another interesting note is another great left-handed pitcher, Kenny Holtzman, also wouldn't pitch on Yom Kippur and in 1966 he and Koufax were scheduled to pitch a regular season game against each other on Yom Kippur. Both pitchers pushed back their start to the next day where Holtzman beat Koufax 2-1.

So there's a little Jewish sports history, a little appropriate musical reference, and I'll add an invitation to our Purimspiel and as many Shabbat services as you can make. See you at the Temple and at the ballpark. PLAY BALL!

B'Shalom,

Paul Zipperstein

Treasurer's Report

March is here and so Spring is on its way. I'm ready for some sunshine and warmer temperatures! We have many events and activities happening, including our Purimspiel and the upcoming Sisterhood Passover Community Seder, with reservations due March 28th.

The budget committee (Kathy Rosenfeld, Marv Reiter and myself) have started preparing the draft budget for next fiscal year. We will publish it in the Bulletin once we have finished all the number crunching.

We continue reaching out to possible new members. If you know of friends, co-workers, and/or neighbors that are Jewish and may be interested in our Congregation, please let Leslie Soltz, our membership chairperson know.

I am always available if you any questions regarding temple finances, scrip program, or about dues; please contact me at 951-317-2003 or jbstrain1130@gmail.com.

Mental Health Awareness in Action
"Facing Suicide" 3

The young man on the Flathead Indian Reservation in Montana is in deep depression, lonely, and in pain. He decides to end his own life. He prepares. But before he acts, he texts two of his friends. They jump in the truck and make a beeline for his home, knock on the door, take him away from that darkest of emotional places, and help him get help. He involves himself more in his Native culture. He finds unparalleled joys in the beauty of his land. One of his saviors becomes his companion on regular outings, full of joking, hanging out, and lots of talking and laughing.

A woman finds she cannot bear anymore the pain engulfing her. She is sure even her growing son will be better off without her. She's no good to anyone. She is also a woman who adores shoes, and has quite a collection. She calls her aunt, who is more like a cousin in age. She tells her she is giving all her shoes to her – they share a love of shoes and have similar sized feet. What? What's going on? Why are you giving away your shoes? Soon, the aunt understands. Immediately getting off the phone, she calls 911. Before her niece has time to do anything lethal, the police are knocking at the door. She's admitted to a hospital. She gets treatment. And before the season changes, she and her aunt are sitting together on the porch comparing the new shoes they just bought.

These are two stories of real people in the PBS special, "Facing Suicide," that aired in September 2022. They are not unusual stories. More people are stopped from attempting suicide or are unsuccessful at it than actually get the deed done. Most people are glad they are still alive, and glad for the connections that were created with people who acted on instinct to keep them alive. That sense of isolation, of not mattering to anyone, evaporates as friends or relatives rush to save them. And the ones who take action are not trained in any way. They simply care and act on instinct. The truth is we do care about each other. We need to trust that caring and do the best we can to help.

The young man, a super high school basketball player, has organized his teammates to make social media videos to help others who may be thinking of suicide. And they dedicated their important games to the many Flathead families whose children have died by suicide. They call their efforts, "The Warrior Movement."

We might call them 'Warriors for Life.'

From Our Coordinator of School for Jewish Living

The SJL students learned about Tu B'Shevat and made beautiful hand painted trees. They enjoyed learning about the many fruits and nuts that grow on trees. They attended a lovely Tu B'Shevat seder prepared by Cantor Bern-Vogel. The students also planted parsley seeds in preparation for Passover seder plates.

Sisterhood Speaks

We had so many exciting events in February, I hope you were able to attend at least one. On February 1 we had our first "Sisters' Night Out", meeting for dinner and a prevue showing of 80s for Brady. Then we held a super successful Casa Casino Night on February 4, where we gambled, ate from a taco bar and generally enjoyed the evening. The Book Club discussed The Maid on February 6. We held our famous Mahjongg Tournament on February 20th, where 50 players enjoyed a wonderful luncheon prepared by our Sisterhood ladies, competed at maj and had a good time. Sisterhood led Shabbat services on February 24. As I write this, we are planning another Sisters' Night Out at the Look Theater on February 28 with dinner beforehand.

March looks like it will be a bit quieter. Sisterhood will again distribute Shalach Manot bags to the congregation, sponsored by those who donated. Bags with goodies, including hamantaschen, will be available at Erev Shabbat services Friday night, March 3, at the Purim Celebration on March 5 and at the temple during the week. Come pick yours up, or call the office to arrange delivery.

Be sure to join us for the fun on Sunday, March 19 for Family Game and Chili Day. Bring your favorite games to play together (Clue, Monopoly, Scrabble, Checkers, Poker, Mahjongg, Trivial Pursuit, and any other game you would enjoy - please no video games). For $5 per person or $20 a family, we'll serve chili dogs, cole slaw, chips & drinks for lunch. It starts right after SJL at 12 noon.

Because Passover is the first week in April, I am announcing that again this year, Sisterhood will arrange the congregational Seder, to be held on April 6 at 5:45 pm, led by Cantor Jennifer Bern Vogel. Cost for adults will be $40, children 4-13 $20, under 4 no charge, but a reservation still must be made to ensure enough seating. Paid reservations are due by March 28.

As always I look forward to seeing you all at a temple or Sisterhood event very soon.

Passover Marriage Reconsecration Friday, April 7th

On Friday, April 7th, during our Shabbat service, we will honor couples who are celebrating quinquennial wedding anniversaries during 2023 (5th, 10th, 15th, 20th, 25th, 30th, 35th, 40th, 45th, 50th, 55th, 60th, etc.) All of the couples will stand beneath the chuppah once again to reconsecrate their wedding vows.

We look forward to honoring them as they repeat some of the acts of the traditional Jewish marriage ceremony. Come wish the "brides" and "grooms" well as they celebrate their milestone anniversaries. If you are celebrating a quinquennial anniversary and would like to be included in the ceremony, please notify the temple office.
